

Thrown over a bridge

By: Kiersten Setting

Two half sisters were found under a bridge with bags over their heads and shotgun shells near their bodies. The truck they were traveling in is currently missing and the killer is unknown.

One of the women, Vanita Richardson, was attending Floyd County Schools and about to graduate in a week at the age of 19. The other woman, Truvenia Campbell, age 31, was the victim of what was rolled out as a homicide for both women. The women were found with bags over their heads and then the investigators believe they were thrown off the Etowa bridge in Rome, Georgia. Near their bodies shotgun shells were found. This homicide was suspected to happen Tuesday night and the bodies were both found on Wednesday morning. The two women were traveling in a gold 1997 Toyota Corolla and investigators are now wanting anyone that has seen this vehicle to report it. There are currently no suspects in the death of the two women, one of which was about to hit a huge milestone and had big plans for her future.
