

Unexpectedly good review

By: Kiersten Setting

Unexpected on TLC is a show about teen girls who end up getting pregnant by not taking the precautions that people would take to be safe during sex. It starts with three girls, and at the beginning they are all still pregnant. The viewer sees what it does to these girls' lives and even the people around them, including the baby's dad and the grandparents, even the great-grandparents. It made me realize how much this affects the woman's life and also everyone around them. It is so real that you can't stop watching. As the viewer moves through the seasons, the show still keep up with some past season girls and it shows that this happens to so many girls whether they aren't educated on the precautions to take or they just end up being careless. The show really catches everything, such as the father not being there and even the relationships that are still working. It also shows almost every which way a teen pregnancy could go such as almost losing the baby or even almost losing the mother. Now they are even doing the show during COVID and showing the obstacles that are thrown at the parents from that. I could not stop thinking about how I am as old or even older than these girls, and I know I couldn't care for another life. These parents are forced to grow up at such a young age and have to deal with things that most people don't deal with until they are around 25 years old. I think it is a very great show for all teens to watch and learn about what could happen to them.
