

Nails by Chloe

By: Madeline Infalvi

Chloe Lohr, a freshman at Perry High School, has a passion for nail art. She started doing nails at the age of 12 and her knowledge and interest have grown ever since. Lohr started off only doing her own nails, but soon she was doing friends' and families' nails as well.

Lohr explained why she liked doing nails, "I love how peaceful and quiet it is. When I'm doing my own nails it's for myself and I enjoy doing it to myself." She loves to test her skills and said the hardest nails she has ever done were glitter gradient nails, "It's a base color, for example I might use a pink and then do silver glitter on top, you then have to gradient between the two colors to create the look." Lohr mostly does gel and dip nails, "I get most of my nail supplies from Amazon, Walmart, and Sally's beauty store," she said.

She explained that she would love to continue doing nails in her future, "I would have nails as a backup plan if my first career doesn't work out, but I love it as a hobby." She loves doing nails and hopes to keep getting better.

Lohr has been doing nails for about two years now and has grown so much. Her advice to anyone wanting to start doing nails is to, "figure out what type of nails you want to do, like gel or acrylic, then buy your supplies, and watch a lot of tutorials and practice a ton."
